Sugar Babe`s Guide to Rome for Missy Mag

SUGAR BABE`S GUIDE TO ROME

MISSY MAG: How long have you been living in your city?

ELENA: I moved to Rome two years ago, but I spent more or less six months here.

Why do you live in your city?

Because of the man I love. We've also been living in Bali, Indonesia, where I gave birth to our daughter.

What should one absolutely not miss when visiting your city, what is something you have to do or see?

Before going to Rome, make a... (more)

SLET 080311 - Flocking of birds

To mark 100 years since the first International Women's Day, and in honour of female courage, determination and achievement PERFORMANCE KLUB FISKULTURNIK presents, a celebratory slice of present-day performance & video by a diverse, digital sisterhood:

Slet 080311 is conceived as an international digital festival of works by female artists who use their own body as an expressive tool or are exploring a concept of the body / identity through image and movement. Featuring eclectic footage - from live... (more)

Happy Hormones

There was a moment when I felt I wanted a child. I opened my gates to the universe in an archaic dance invoking the ancient cheeky goddess Baubo. She had a laugh and fulfilled my wish. My consciousness burst into million fragments, my body liquefied into fire. I was forging my new self.

From the moment when I expressed my wish I started gaining weight. It was like my mind was already pregnant and my body followed. Then, it happened. I was grateful, I was ecstatic, I was confused. The perception of my body changed. If before I was worried about every single gram balancing on my scale, focusing on my belly terrified about its bloatness or floppiness, now I... (more)
